

Reynoldston is a parish and village on the high road from Swansea to the Worm's Head, nine miles west from Killay Station on the Gowerton and Swansea Bay branch of the London and North Western railway and 13 west from Swansea, in the Gower division of the county of Glamorgan, Swansea Hundred, Gower Union and petty sessional division, Swansea county court district, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthenshire and diocese of St Davids. The Church of St. George is a building in stone, in the Early English and decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, north transept and a bell gable with bells. The church was restored in 1866 and affords 160 sittings, of which 120 are free. The register dates from the year 1713, but has been irregularly kept. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £145, with 38 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Lady Blythswood, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Ronald William Lockyer M.A. of Jesus College Oxford, who is also the Vicar of Penrice. There is a Wesleyan chapel. On the borders of the parish is a cromlech called "King Arthur's Stone", the upper portion of which consists of a huge mass of millstone grit, and at Stouthall, the property of Mrs William Crawshay, and the residence of Charles Edwin Price Esq. is a large natural cave. In the library at Stouthall is an old door resembling a bookcase, communicating with the drawing room. "The King Arthur" hotel is a convenient and good inn. Fairy Hill is the residence of Mrs Benson. Lady Blythswood, who is the lady of the manor and Mrs William Crawshay are the principal landowners. The soil is loam, subsoil limestone. The chief crops are wheat but the land is principally pasture. The area is 1,069 acres: rateable value is £1,407 and the population in 1911 was 267.
